as we see it

For some strange reason, the summer season in television is termed a "hiatus" by the industry. The word means, "a gap, an opening with a part missing."

Actually the only gap involved is the gap in standard programming. For 39 or more weeks viewers watch the same faces, the same formats. Then for a few weeks they have an opportunity to see new faces and new shows before the regulars come back.

If TV is to maintain its current popularity it must continue to explore new entertainment sources, develop new means of bringing information into our homes. The winter months are crowded with commercial programs, so the summer, when time is available, seems the logical time to experiment.

Certainly no one can term such a period a "gap." It is, rather, a time for television to grow, to acquire stature as well as size, scope as well as mere coverage.

There is an understandable tendency on the part of sponsors and networks to fill the summer months with pale imitations of successful winter shows. Since panel quiz programs are cheap and easy to produce viewers often are offered umpteen variations of What's My Line as summer substitutes for regular shows. Quiz shows are fun, but not quite that much fun.

Such programs can hardly be termed progressive. Nothing new is developed. And no one is too amused. Television cannot improve by imitating itself, or by giving the audience more of the same stuff it gets during the winter.

The so-called "summer hiatus" should be the most exciting time of the year for viewers, a time when they can select their next season's entertainment from the parade of new ideas presented to them. Summer should be the "tryout" season, rather than a period of "hiatus" that does no one much good, least of all the viewer.

TV Teletype

NEW YORK Bob Stahl reports:

NBC engineers, secretly experimenting with a high-powered directional antenna on Long Island, have succeeded in bringing in a live TV picture directly from BBC in London. They bounce the British signal off the ionosphere. The picture is fuzzy but NBC hopes it will be good enough to use occasionally in covering the Coronation June 2.

Although Dragnet's sponsor has until June to renew the series, JACK WEBB has been informally told the show is set for another year . . . CBS will tour JOAN CAULFIELD, and BARRY NELSON to Manhattan and the Midwest sometime in mid-summer, inaugurating a personal appearance policy for its topline talent . . . BRODERICK CRAWFORD will play the lead in The Widow Makes Three telefilm for Playhouse of Stars.

old favorites take heart because

TED MACK'S BACK

TED MACK's triumphant return to television with his Original Amateur Hour, largely in answer to the demands of loyal viewers, has raised hopes of scores of other former favorites now absent from video screens.

When Mack's new show was scheduled for the NBC network, it touched off speculation that many other shows, formerly very popular, were on the way back.

In Mack's case, thousands of letters,

Jerry Lester and Dagmar, early TV stars who have dimmed. Lester after a layoff due to trouble with NBC is now on an ABC panel show.

Kyle MacDonnell, who faded from Nation's TV screens when she retired to await a baby. She's now in night clubs and musical comedies.

wires and phone calls flooded network offices, urging resumption of the program, after it went off the air. A group of Buffalo, N. Y., citizens even asked permission to place newspaper advertisements urging his return.

Oddly, this was one program which dropped its sponsor, instead of the sponsor cancelling the show. Last September, the cigaret firm backing the show asked that it be cut to 30 minutes, instead of 45.

Mack and his producers refused. He took his amateurs on a tour of the Nation's vaudeville theaters and led one group that entertained American troops in Korea. Now he's back, in a half-hour program, but only because NBC could not find a solid hour of available time.

The show, Ethel and Albert, co-starring Peg Lynch and Alan Bunce, also is back on NBC, thanks to the friends it made on last year's Kate Smith Evening Hour. The list of returning shows is growing.

High Casualty Rate

Television, considering its short history, has had a record number of such casualties. Popular programs like The Goldbergs and One Man's Family went off the air. So did individual stars like Danny Thomas, Ed Wynn, Roberta Quinlan and Kyle MacDonnell.

The fact that both NBC and CBS

One Man's Family: dropped by sponsor because of rocketing TV costs.

have their evening time periods completely filled is responsible for the temporary demise of several programs. NBC, for example, now owns rights to The Goldbergs but cannot find a half-hour time slot for the show.

Gertrude Berg (Molly Goldberg) and others in her cast are sitting it out, appearing as guests from time to time on such NBC programs as Milton Berle's Star Theater.

The same problem, but reportedly abetted by Jerry Lester's demands for more pay, forced NBC to cancel Broadway Open House. This 11 P.M. to midnight show, on which Dagmar won her spurs, had both loyal viewers and sponsors. When NBC refused to grant Jerry a salary boost, he withdrew.

Jerry Lester Returns

Jerry has since returned to TV as a panel member on ABC's The Name's the Same. NBC for a time gave Dagmar her own show, Dagmar's Canteen, but dropped it when the program failed to excite any sponsor interest.

TV's skyrocketing costs contributed to the exit of other TV stars and programs. Roberta Quinlan, one of TV's early singing stars, was dropped when the new advertising agency for her carpet-firm sponsor, ruled against TV's cost. Roberta since then has become a night-club success. A soap sponsor dropped One Man's Family for the same reason.

Efforts were made this spring to return One Man's Family to TV, but ran into difficulty, although the program continues to be successful and popular on radio. Network-controlled programs are likely to be sold first.

She Waited for Stork

Kyle MacDonnell, TV's first "sweetheart," faded from the medium for a different reason. Last seen on Celebrity Time, she retired to await the birth of her baby. By the time she was ready to return, the program had been cancelled. Kyle has since been highly successful in night clubs and musical comedies.

Danny Thomas, a success on NBC's All Star Revue last year, demanded that NBC give him his own half-hour. Once more NBC could not find a suitable half-hour so Danny disappeared from TV screens. He too has since returned to his first love, night clubs, besides starring in several Warner Bros. movies. He is signed with ABC for the fall.

Faye Emerson, who introduced the plunging neckline to TV, was a low-rating casualty. When her Wonderful Town program, telecast at the same time as Your Show of Shows failed to draw a large enough audience to satisfy her sponsor, the program was cancelled. Faye now stars on a local New York radio program, appearing on TV only occasionally.

Faye Emerson's video rating tumbled when she was booked opposite Show of Shows.

SO You WANT TO BE A TV STAR?

CONNIE CLAUSEN SHOWS HOW SHE DID IT

IF you can support yourself in New York for a year . . .

If you are willing to make rounds of the casting offices each day from 9 to 5 just as if you were in business . . .

If you are ambitious enough to attend dramatic school regularly . . .

And if you feel you have a bit of luck riding on your shoulder . . .

Then by all means take a shot at realizing your dream to be a TV star. Connie Clausen did.

She's an up-and-coming TV actress and knows how hard it is to struggle for 10 months before getting a bit part in a drama. Connie arrived in New York with some Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus experience and some Hollywood bit parts behind her. Luckily, she was signed as an assistant emcee on Live Like a Millionaire on her first day in Manhattan. That took care of the problem of eating.

She then found it necessary to apply for auditions at various casting offices and learned she had to memorize lines and do a dramatic scene.

After that, she made casting office rounds daily, finding out that she had to look her best at all times. For Connie, it meant having her hair set and nails manicured every week.

She found that, when called, it was advisable to dress for the particular role being cast.

She learned schooling was essential, still attends classes every week at the Group Theater.

And now with star billing on Hollywood Screen Test and Tales of Tomorrow behind her, she looks hopefully to the future.

Connie Clausen starts her day as she enters a New York station in search of a role.

A typical scene. The anxious wait outside the door of the casting director's office. Note the cigaret stubs littering the floor, evidence of her long vigil.

Connie checks in on Radio Registry phone. Most actors call several times daily to learn if a director is looking for them.

Reviews

Tom Conway: TV's suave detective.

HOMICIDE SQUAD

PROGRAM OF THE WEEK

HOMICIDE SQUAD (ABC) is one of the better telefilm detective series produced in Hollywood. It presents little in the way of new production or program ideas but, with its reliance on credible stories and competent casts, it should find a large audience addicted to guessing the killer's identity before the final fadeout.

Tom Conway, well known as the Falcon in the old movie series, plays Inspector Mark Saber. A Britisher (he's the brother of George Sanders), he's probably the smoothest and most suave among the ever-growing list of TV detectives. He's the type you'd expect to find in a Madison Avenue advertising agency rather than in the homicide bureau of a big-city police department. But his acting ability makes the characterization shine.

Always A Hero

Cast as the hero-type, rather than the plodding, hard-working detective, Conway solves most of his crimes via his agile mind. This probably won't sit too well with actual homicide police but it gets him by neatly with the viewers. There are enough allusions to the work of police laboratory technicians and other authentic doings to remove the onus of fantasy from the TV production.

Also on the credit side is the fact that the writers don't attempt to cheat viewers by dragging too many phony clues into their stories. Once the characters in each episode are established, Conway works his way through the list until the culprit is unmasked. Viewers can have a good time going through the lineup and eliminating the suspects with him.

Able Assistant

Frank Burke, also well known via his numerous movie roles, portrays Conway's chief assistant, the hard-headed (but with the usual heart-of-gold) Sgt. Tim Maloney. While he's the stereotype of most bumbling police sergeants as depicted in these things, he also makes his characterization believable. He is a distinct asset to the fast-moving episode.

Filming quality is top-notch, with the producers wisely utilizing their movie cameras to achieve a scope and range in sets and backdrops which would be impossible in a live production. All in all, Homicide Squad is another reason why television is an admirable companion for a long evening at home at any season of the year.

EYE WITNESS

WITH the launching of its new Eye Witness series on Monday night, NBC has tossed in the lap of Robert Montgomery the difficult task of trying to lure viewers away from the top-rated I Love Lucy on the rival CBS network. To say that Montgomery, as producer of this new program, has his work cut out for him would be the understatement of the year.

Chief factor in his favor is that Eye Witness is as distinct from Lucy in content and flavor as it's possible to be. The new show is a half-hour mystery series, produced live in New York, highlighting the unusual or off-beat in story material. Thus Montgomery has a chance to win over the viewers who would rather watch eerie tales or whodunits instead of the antics of the Desi Arnaz-Lucille Ball family.

Melodrama—A Specialty

Eye Witness is in the Danger-Suspense genre of shows, concentrating as it does on melodrama, psychotic killers and guess-who-slew-the-victim tales. But the program is much too obvious to match its TV predecessors. Montgomery attempts to lay on the suspense with too heavy a brush, with the result that viewers are usually more distracted than glued to the edges of their seats.

With so many similar programs now on the air, Montgomery will undoubtedly be confronted with a shortage of stories suitable for adaptation. He has, in fact, already repeated one yarn aired on another program several years ago —the story of a knife-wielder with a penchant for murdering luscious redheads. His only alternative is to rely on original stories, and it's to be hoped that writers can turn these out fast enough for him.

Eric Dressler (in chair), Mercer McLeod, Harry Townes, right, in Eye Witness.

Montgomery should keep a tighter checkrein on his authors to eliminate the abundance of red-herring clues they put into their yarns. On one show, for example, virtually every member in the cast was spotlighted as the possible killer with the sole exception of the girl who was murdered.

Acting Usually Good

The acting in each program is usually good. While Eye Witness does not carry as costly a budget as the Robert Montgomery Presents series, it's adequate for the show, permitting good sets and camera work. Lee Bowman, one-time portrayer of Ellery Queen on TV and the only permanent cast member, serves as an amiable program host for this entertaining and unusual mystery series.

CAPSULE CRITIQUES

MINDY Carson has developed a pleasant TV personality which she combines nicely with her smooth song stylings to make Club Embassy (NBC) a fair little musical presentation. Mindy also often surprises with her dancing ability. Florian ZaBach, violinist, and Danny Hoctor, dancer, and a singing and dancing chorus, round out the cast.

MY Little Margie is the telefilm comedy series which won so many viewers as a summer replacement last year that CBS revived it as a regular Thursday night program. Gale Storm, in the title role, co-stars with one-time movie star Charles Farrell. If you're not particular about the stories often getting ridiculously out of hand, you'll probably consider the show pleasant entertainment.—R. S.

TV Guide Goes BACKSTAGE

Desi Warms Up Audience and Lucy Blows Her Lines

WE walk onto Stage One of the General Service Studios in Hollywood on Friday at 8 P.M. in the company of Harry Ackerman, vice president of CBS in charge of programs on the West Coast. We're there to watch the first I Love Lucy show to be filmed since last November 14. Desi is holding a hand microphone telling a joke to the 300 people sitting in bleacher-type seats in the auditorium.

Before the filming, Desi explains that Ricky, Jr., will be featured in the show. Ricky is the name of the television baby, while the real new baby is named Desi, IV.

Doll Sometimes Used

Desi says that a doll wrapped in a blanket will be used in the long shots, and a real baby in the closeups. Actually, the real baby is portrayed by twins because a law prohibits using a real baby in front of the hot lights for more than five minutes at a time.

In the scenes where the doll is used, the crying is done on cue from backstage by Jerry Hausner, a mature actor who has been a cry-baby on radio programs for years.

The real baby proved to be a ham. It cried during the scenes as per script. When the scene was finished and Lucy picked him out of the crib, he stopped crying as though on cue and stared at the applauding audience.

Lucy and Desi: two for rumba.

Lucy fluffed her lines only once. Jokingly, she blamed Ricky because the scene had to be done over. He said it was all her fault, at which point Lucy playfully threw a roundhouse right that landed on Desi's back.

Eight set-ups are required to film the show with five-minute intermissions between scenes for costume changes. A five-piece Latin-American musical group entertained during the intermissions. When Lucy and Desi returned from a costume change before the camera crew was ready for the next scene, they did a rumba for the studio audience that would make most professional dancers jealous.—Martin Lewis.

TERRY GIORGIAN

A Day In The a TV Model

THE glamor bug first bites the junior female set when little girls don their mothers' finery and strut before a three-sided mirror. If these actions are a criterion for age, TV model Terry Giorgian never grew up!

She's still going through a process of "dressing up" and parading her finery before glass. But now this "masquerade" is her profession and the glass is a TV camera lens.

9:00 A.M.

Terry's rise and shine routine is launched with a brisk set of exercises. As model for Paul Fogarty's "Your Figure, Ladies," she's required to look well-groomed despite the pace.

12:30 P.M.

Next, a quick flight home where Terry (Mrs. Bob Deu) turns housewife and whips up her spouse's favorite morsel, chocolate cake.

3:30 P.M.

Publicity picture time. Terry obliges by posing with her beauty trophies, one step in her climb to Chicago modeling fame. She is a former "Miss Chicago."

Life of

1:00 AM

There's that cake again! Escorted home by her favorite stage-door Johnnie, Terry prepares a midnight snack. Bob's hungry, but Terry, ever the calorie-conscious model, admonishes, "Your figure, dear!"

One of Chicago's leading TV models, Terry first tasted glamor when she was voted "Miss Chicago" of 1949. Later that year she captured sixth place in Atlantic City's "Miss America" extravaganza. Since then, she's spent her time in the Windy City promoting the big business of glamor. On these pages is a pictorial record of Terry's typical model day.

Terry is currently seen on "Your Figure, Ladies" and on "Request Playhouse" commercials, both on WGN-TV (channel 9).

10:05 P.M.

The moment for which Terry has been grooming arrives. A pirouette before the camera, a flashing smile into the lens and another gown is sold.

6:30 P.M.

Back at WGN-TV once more, Terry squeezes into a corner of the cramped make-up room. There she spends nearly a half hour applying TV makeup for her commercial modeling role.

7:30 P.M.

A last-minute pinning by Mary Hackl, fitter from the sponsor's clothing store, insures a figure-molding ensemble for Terry's whirls before the cameras.

Chicago's TV Clowns

LAUGHTER IS THEIR BUSINESS

Circustime, U.S.A., is a Siamese twin of spring. Both arrive at the same time. Both have the same effect on human beings. And what better symbol of the big top's influence than the spirit of the rollicking, tumbling, mirthful clowns?

But Circustime on TV is a year-round occurrence. And TV's clowns make laughter their business at all times. Here are Chicago's busiest laugh-getters:

Art Hern, "Natco The Clown" on Kids Karnival Kwiz — A tinier bundle of dynamite would be hard to find. After his debut in "Little Lord Fauntleroy" at 12, Art toured the country with stock companies, vaudeville groups and finally ended up in radio. More accustomed to heavy roles, pint-sized Art notched a villain's career for himself in stage, vaudeville and movies for 20 years before turning funnyman on TV.

Nick Francis, "Nicky" of Super Circus and Time For Fun—A fourth generation clown, Nicky came to America from Italy at the age of five with his father. Nicky's mother, a circus aerialist in Europe, inspired him to supplement his tramp clown bit with tricks on the trapeze, unicycle, tight rope and trampoline. Nicky has performed in medicine shows, dance marathons, rodeos, aquacades, circuses and musical comedies.

Phillip Bardwell Patton, "Scampy" of Super Circus — Son of the show's producer, 13-year-old Bardie fell into the role when a midget, originally slated for the part, failed to appear. He's the envy of the marble crowd and the scampiest member of the Super Circus clown trio. Bardie's been traveling in a suitcase since he was five. Both his father and mother are show biz veterans.

Cliff Soubier, "Cliffy" of Super Circus — A Canadian by birth, Cliffy lived out of a backstage trunk while his parents traveled as featured performers with a medicine show. Exposed to greasepaint tactics, it wasn't long before he debuted (at 16) with stock company productions and later traveled with them. Character roles are his stock in trade and he has made them his specialty in radio, minstrel shows and movies.

OLD MAN WITH A HORN

The old gentleman calmly tooting a tune in the center of this picture is the latest rage around Hollywood Beach, Florida. He's Vince Fiorino, Sr., former Chicagoan, whose platter "The Red Canary" has created quite a stir in record circles. Venerable Vince and his sliding tuba have already been signed up for personal appearances and TV.

Eve Arden is accustomed to receiving apples from her pupils. But when husband Brooks West turns bashful beau, "Our Miss Brooks" is shocked—and maybe a mite suspicious. West is Richard Rhinelander on "My Friend Irma."

AN ANNIVERSARY—A CONTEST ON WMAQ

by WM. A. QUE

COME TUESDAY, MAY 5, DOWNTOWN Nash will mark its first anniversary as sponsor on Station WMAQ. Sundays from 10:00 to 11 a.m. this long-established automobile dealer presents the highly popular Downtown With Hellyer show. The program provides Sunday morning listeners with 60 minutes of popular recorded favorites, news reports, plus the humor and philosophy of an easy-going, big-sized fella by the name of Art Hellyer. If you haven't caught the show before, make it a point to get next to the 670 mark on your radio dial this Sunday at 10:00 a.m.

HELLYER

SWITCHING FROM THE "old" to the "new," I wonder if you've heard The Nation's Business (WMAQ, Tuesdays, 7:15 p.m.). The purpose of this new program is to better acquaint listeners with situations and facts regarding the business world of today. Sponsor of the program, Fairbanks-Morse, believes that a full knowledge of business by everybody is good for all business.

DUGGAN

AND HERE'S SOMETHING for you Tom Duggan fans. Tom is conducting a special contest on his weeknight, Sports Special show, 10:50 to 11:00 p.m. on WMAQ. All-expenses-paid Happiness Tours to Colorado, New Orleans, the Ozarks and the Golden West are being awarded winners. Get all the details on Tom Duggan's Sports Special Show this Monday at 10:50 p.m. —Adv.

BACKSTAGE DIARY

POPULAR RUSS REED, who was suddenly axed from channel 4's weather show, had reasons other than the elements for his dismissal. Seems Russ was giving a talk for a PTA group and turned up too late for his WBBM-TV stanza. Frank Reynolds is now doing the barometer readings in Russ' place. Incidentally, that was the first show Reed missed since becoming a TV weatherman. . . . Although Studs Terkel bowed out of Caruso's Cronies after the rather dismal debut of that program, the producers used a Terkel-written script for the second week's show. Differences of opinion between Studs and producer Bernard Goodman hastened Terkel's exit. By the way, that Studs-Chet Roble "Joe Fan" sports TV idea looks like a good bet to land a channel 7 evening slot.

REED

Belated congrats to Don Herbert (Mr. Wizard) and his publicist wife Maraleita Dutton on their adoption of a baby boy, named Jeffrey Dutton Herbert. . . . A hot Cincinnati-originated show called the Ern Westmore Hollywood Glamor TV Review is hoping to settle in Chicago soon. Packaged by Hallmark Productions, the show has an audience participation gimmick wherein a lucky gal gets the full glamor treatment by the famous Westmore beauty crew. The femmes down Ohio way loved it.

The Chicago Educational Television Association is rolling along in high gear. A charter subscriber plan has been outlined by chairman Edward L. Ryerson in an attempt to raise funds for the channel 11 operation. More about how you can become a subscriber later on.

Rates the Boxers

THIS WEEK'S NETWORK FIGHTS
(Subject to change. Champions are not rated. No. 1 in each division is top contender for title.)

RALPH JONES VS. JIMMY HERRING, Middleweights, from New York; Friday, May 1, WNBQ (channel 5) 9:00 p.m.

Jones is rated 7th; Herring is unrated. Jones is favored in this return match. Herring won an eight-round decision last August, but Jones has improved since, defeating Bratton and Womber while losing a close bout with Castellani, and Herring seems unable to hold off the improved Jones.

KID GAVILAN VS. DANNY WOMBER, from Syracuse, N. Y., Saturday, May 2, WBKB (channel 7) 8:00 p.m.

Gavilan is the welterweight champion; Womber is rated 15th in the middleweights. Gavilan is enjaying a streak of 28 victories, and there is little chance that Womber will break it in this non-title bout, although the Kid will find Womber a tough foe.

TUZO PORTUGUEZ VS. FRANCIS (MICKEY) LAURENT, Middleweights, from Brooklyn, N. Y.; Monday, May 4, WGN-TV (channel 9) 8:30 p.m. Neither boxer is rated. This is an international cantest. Laurent of France is making his U. S. debut. Portuguez of Costa Rica is back after a week's rest. Laurent's ring knowledge is unknown, so befare passing judgment, I must get a glimpse, the same as most viewers.

DAVEY GALLARDO VS. CHARLES RILEY, Featherweights, from Washington, D. C., Wednesday, May 6, WBBM-TV (channel 4) 9:00 p.m.

Gallardo is rated 4th; Riley is rated 11th. Gallardo is favored. He made a strong impression in his TV debut on April 8, when he defeated the highly regarded Percy Bassett. Riley, managed by ex-champ Chalky Wright, is an experienced ringman but has recently been in semi-retirement.

RATINGS: Here are my national boxing ratings for May. The boxers I list have been seen in action, either in persan or over TV. They are graded according to ability and caliber of oppasition. Champs are accepted as leaders of their divisions.

Heavyweights: Rocky Marciano, Ch., No. 1. Joe Walcott, 2. Ezzard Charles, 3. Roland La Starza, 4. Bob Baker, 5. Rex Layne.

Light Heavyweights: Archie Moore, Ch., No. 1. Harold Johnson, 2. Joey Maxim, 3. Donny Nardico, 4. Harry Matthews, 5. Tommy Harrisan.

SPORTSCAST

by ED PAZDUR

GENERALLY speaking, we view stock car racing with the same indignant disapproval that we hold for wrestling and the roller derby. It's a rough and tumble show with plenty of action when steel smashes against steel, or as one critic so aptly put it: "It's an alley brawl on wheels."

However, Arthur Folz and his cars at Soldier Field have done much in recent years to elevate the sport. By posting top prizes, checking cars, and racing on the country's finest track, Folz's races are now of major league caliber. He would be wise to label it "Major Stock Car Racing."

Folz has reportedly reversed his anti-TV sentiments and granted video rights to one of Chicago's top remote directors, Jack Page. Now with the show packaged and ready for sale, Chicagoans may expect to see on their screens some of the finest stock cars and drivers whirling around Soldier Field about mid-June. . . . With hockey, boxing, and stock car racing experience plus some golf slated for the summer, Jack Page will prove himself the country's most verstatile TV sports director.

John Harrington, the portly, bespectacled WBBM-TV sportscaster, is making good our prediction—after his TV debut—that he was a sleeper and would make Chicago take notice. . . . He shuns sensationalism but throws punches where they hurt. His recent criticism of IAC Chairman Livingston Osborne's views on wrestling were biting and effective. . . . He displays initiative and aggressiveness in sports reporting by showing timely films and pictures. . . . You can catch John any Monday thru Friday at 10:15 p.m. over channel 4.

Cuffnotes: Thanks to TV, welterweight Chuck Davey achieved in two hours and thirty-six minutes the popularity it usually requires fighters years to attain. It took fifteen minutes to KO Ike Williams, the former lightweight champion. He worked forty-five minutes to put Chico Vejar away twice and one hour and nine minutes to dispose of Rocky Graziano, Carmen Basilio and Fitzie Pruden. . . . Then the walls caved in on the plucky southpaw after only 24 minutes against Champion Kid Gavilan.

This time you be the judge! Keep score with Jack Drees and Ed Pazdur every Monday, WENR-TV, 9:00 p.m., on Pontiac's Boxing From Rainbo show.

THE MALES INVADE

That old theory that the kitchen is a woman's domain has been debunked, thanks to the showings of Messrs. Francois, Robert and Frank Pope. These three gentlemen, as comfortable in the kitchen as most men are on the golf course, have become culinary kings in this ladies' league.

Francois, who recently moved his utensils from WBBM-TV to a corner of a WNBQ studio, is of course an established chef in Chicago TV circles. Now his sons are building their reputations as cooks supreme by assisting their Dad on the show.

Basic Training

Since the age of 10, both boys have been experimenting with every exotic dish from Lobster Newburg to Florentine pastry. While other boys were tossing baseballs, Frank and Bob were learning the salad-tossing technique. While other young men were pursuing philosophy, economics and the physical sciences, the Pope boys were studying the arts and sciences of cooking.

Although both attended the University of Illinois, they left college to enroll in their parents' institute, The Antoinette Pope School of Fancy Cookery. Now full-fledged graduates, they alternate each week as assistants on "Creative Cookery" telecasts. One brother takes the week's inventory of supplies at the studio while the other teaches at the school and orders groceries.

Francois Plays Cupid

The Pope family unit has been expanded to include the boys' wives and children. Although Frank met his frau at a party, Francois unwittingly played Cupid for son Bob. As one of the judges in a baking contest at Lake View High School about five years ago, Francois helped pick an 18-year-old Swedish lass, Dolores Oberg, as winner. Dolores won as her prize a scholarship to the Antoinette Pope School of Fancy Cookery. Bob, one of the assistant instructors there, saw the blonde beauty, wangled an introduction and married her. They now have two children, Bobbie, 2½, and Debra, 1.

Frank's wife, Lucille, resembles the Popes so closely that she is often mistaken for a sister. Frank and Lucille also have two youngsters, Steven, 3½, and Patsy, 2½.

Simple Foods at Home

Both daughters-in-law are graduates of the Pope School and cooking ventures in both households are cooperative matters. Since the boys spend their working hours perfecting fancy dishes, they prefer the simpler foods at home. Bob's favorite: spaghetti; Frank's: beans and frankfurters.

Dolores and Lucille are also called upon to act as official correspondents for their husbands. When the fan mail is delivered, the wives switch from cooks to secretaries.

During family consultations on matters culinary—such as perfecting a new recipe for Parisian truffles or Shrimps De Jonghe—the Popes have their own Little U.N. Francois provides the basic French touch; Antoinette adds an Italian variation; Lucille digs back to her German ancestry for a Deutschland contribution, and Dolores comes through with the Swedish seasoning. Frank and Bob have a part to play, too. They're official taste-testers for this international cuisine.

Creative Cookery is seen at 11 a.m. Mon. through Fri. on WNBQ (channel 5).

Boys and girls, don't you think it looks as though Garfield Goose and Gene Autry have said something to surprise Frazier Thomas? Whatever they're up to, the two of them are having lots of fun. You know, Gene and Garfield Goose are old friends, and it could be that Frazier just didn't know this before. Gene had dropped by for an unexpected visit the other day when this picture was taken. You can see Garfield Goose and Frazier at 4:30 p.m. Mon. thru Fri. on WBBM-TV.

THIS WEEK'S CONTEST: Write a line telling what you think any one of the three (Gene, Garfield Goose, or Frazier) might be saying. For the most original line, I'll award $1; second most original, 50 cents; next 15, 25 cents each. Mail your entries to Uncle Herbie, % TV GUIDE, 185 N. Godfrey's Janette

by JACK MABLEY

Morals. On The Plainclothesman on DuMont a few Sundays back one of the characters was an alleged male, supposed to be a choreographer, with a limp wrist, swishy walk and lisping talk. It was about as revolting a sight as I've seen on television.

I kept waiting for the payoff. Maybe he was a killer putting on a front, or a tough detective in disguise. But it never paid off. Apparently the character was injected for comic relief.

It wasn't funny. Fortunately it was an incident of the kind rarely seen on television. Once is too often.

Fish Out of Water

Godfrey. The shows from Miami Beach were wonderful. Godfrey seems to stay two steps ahead of the field in showmanship.

It's too bad one of the most interesting incidents from Miami was seen only by the morning audience. Apparently Janette Davis doesn't like water, not even a little bit. Godfrey enticed her into a tipsy boat in the pool for her song, and rocked her out before she sang a note. Miss Davis was just about as furious as a girl can get in front of a TV camera as she was fished out of the water. But she sang her piece, gagging and out of breath.

Chicago TV. WBKB has attempted to give a boost to Chicago style television with a Wednesday night half-hour called Caruso's Cronies. It features a group of Chicago singers, in a sort of Studs' Place of opera.

It takes an unusually adept group of actors to put over a scriptless Studs' Place. The Caruso singers are good to hear, and are likeable people, but they aren't television actors. Perhaps later shows will iron out the kinks. We hope so, for the idea is fine.

Curtain Time. After 8 or 10 weeks of mediocrity, they came up with a good show. Perseverance pays off.

Who's On Second?

Baseball. Ninety per cent of the time you see the game almost as well as the man in the grandstand. But that other 10 per cent! That'll drive the folks out to the ball parks.

During a St. Louis-Sox game Rivera scored, and when Brownie players started to argue with the ump, Carrasquel stole second. The camera, meanwhile, was pointed toward the people in the stands, who in turn were pointing and yelling toward the action at second base. That's the sort of thing that starts people yelling at their TV sets.

Eye Witness. "Since 8 o'clock this morning the door of Studio 8A has been locked," pretty Diana Lynn confides to the camera. "We had to make sure that in no way would the startling ending of this story leak out." We have news for you, Diana. The startling ending was in all the program listings. It leaked out on 500 NBC press releases. We got a feeling you were spoofing us, Diana. Kind of ruins the mood of this terrific piece of suspense.

The opinions expressed by Mr. Mabley are not necessarily those of TV GUIDE.

"All right, sister, you've broken the bank. You can take it, but I suggest you leave it."

DEAR BOSS:

Sunday afternoon at 4:30 I am drawn by one of those Strange-Things-Are-Happening urges to tune in Channel 4. Usually I can take travelogue shows or leave 'em but this is different. It's called Sightseeing with the Swayzes. And no matter whether we visit Florida's Marine Gardens or Yosemite or Frisco's Chinatown, I get the same thrill, week after week. You too should listen some week and hear the man say: "This is John Cameron Swayze and I want you to meet my wife ..." Ah, but wait. You expect to meet Mary Margaret Swayze or maybe Catherine Gwendolyne or at the very least a Jennifer Elizabeth? Sure—so did I the first time. I was totally unprepared to hear John Cameron Swayze say: "... my wife Tuffie!"

Did you see the first chapter of the new WBKB show called Caruso's Cronies? There were several advance advertising claims calling this effort another pioneering achievement for Chicago-style television. I tuned in with great expectations. I heard an abundance of fine operatic voices flexing their cords and filling the Civic theater stage with ageless arias. A general lack of acting talent made the non-musical moments less rewarding and the unimaginative plot didn't help. If the same cast of unemployed singers had dropped into the old Stud's Place for a piece of apple pie and a cup of coffee, I think the whole thing would have come off much better. However, I'm certainly going to tune in the next chapter of Caruso's Cronies. At least it makes an attempt to be different than Curtain Time. At least it has promise. I want to see for myself whether it promises us another Chicago-style TV milestone or just a millstone. CHUB

Attn: Mr. Robert A. Kubicek

Dear Bob:

Making our debut as advertisers in your magazine was an interesting experience, but even more satisfying because it was profitable.

Up until recently, our offers were limited to newspaper coverage, and we had our doubts about going into an exclusive television publication. Before the first week was up, our volume of sales far exceeded our expectations. Some customers were as far distant as Gary, Ind. and Elgin, Ill.! And what was of most interest was the fact that all customers mentioned seeing our advertisement in TV Guide.

This was clearly a case of a quality offer gaining acceptance by your readers. Whereas our prices for upholstering a sofa and chair are not the lowest, our values are the highest, and TV Guide has proven that television families are rediscovering the fun of brightening up their homes.

Your representative, Mr. Robert Bormann, has been extremely helpful to us in planning our campaign, and we wish to thank him and the magazine for introducing us to a new market.

Sincerely,

HEADACHES, HEARTACHES MARK HISTORY OF OLDEST DRAMATIC SHOW ON TV

Production Assistant Fred Carney, right, sets up scene in Kraft presentation of My Brother's Keeper. Actors, r. to l., are Andrew Duggan, Edward Binns and Harry Townes.

THE oldest network program on television celebrates its sixth birthday next Wednesday night on NBC with its history practically serving as a record of the trials, tribulations and successes of the TV industry.

The program is Kraft Television Theater, which made its debut on May 7, 1947, with a production of Double Door and which sets a television record every time it appears. It has had the greatest number of different actresses, 954; the greatest number of different actors, 492.

The first production in 1947 was presented to only 32,000 receivers, all located in New York. Next Wednesday's performance will be seen by an estimated 22,570,000 viewers in 46 cities.

That first program was staged in NBC's pint-sized Studio 3-D in New York's Radio City. Since January, 1950, Kraft Theater has originated from NBC's mammoth Studio 8-H, which provides room for a number of sets.

The show is produced under the aegis of the J. Walter Thompson advertising agency, which is reluctant to disclose costs of programs. It's known, however, that the first Kraft show cost about $2,500, including about $100 for the script and $75 to John Baragrey, the star. Today, Baragrey and other top-name personalities command $750 for a starring role on Kraft and the agency pays up to $1,000 for a script.

Ed Rice, story editor, found it much easier to find suitable scripts six years ago. Then, there were few other dramas competing for TV story properties. In scouting for stories, Rice says he looks for the same factors now that he did six years ago. "We can deal with any subject," he said, "but it must be about people you believe in and not case subjects from a psychiatrist's notebook. We look for matinee-type plays —believable incidents that might happen to people who live down the street from our viewers."

THE HEADS—Although Dana Wyatt, left, and Susan Delmar long have been on TV, few people will recognize their faces. But people are almost sure to recognize—

THE HANDS—In the same order, they belong to Dana and Susan. You've seen them fixing a thousand cheese dishes on the show's appetizing commercials.

Classics Also on List

This has not prevented Kraft from presenting the classics, including Shakespeare and Pirandello. In fact, since the show first took the air, programs have included 169 adapted from Broadway plays, 53 London stage productions, 27 plays not produced elsewhere, 22 classics and 40 original TV plays. "I feel every so often," Rice said, "that we've exhausted all available plays. Then a fresh supply turns up. Besides, more and more good writers are emerging to do originals."

The show has launched several famous stars. Grace Kelly, now a movie standout, appeared on Kraft June 11, 1952. Anne Francis also stepped from the Kraft showcase into the Hollywood spotlight. She did five Kraft plays before hitting Broadway and the films.

Nancy Marchand, who played her first starring role on Kraft in 1951, was starred in two Broadway productions this year. Ralph Meeker, now in the Broadway hit, Picnic, and star with Betty Hutton of the movie, Somebody Loves Me, made his first big dramatic appearance on Kraft Jan. 31, 1951, in A Sound of Hunting.

Almost every Broadway play this season included a performer who had worked previously on Kraft. Eight appeared in Shakespeare's Much Ado About Nothing. Four members of the comedy hit, Seven Year Itch, including the star, Tom Ewell, have appeared on Kraft. Others on Broadway this season include Robert Pastene, Peggy Conklin, Eileen Heckert, Mary Hartig, Conrad Janis, Lydia St. Claire, Donald Murphy, Silva Gaselli and Richard Derr.

Hunt for New Talent

According to Maury Holland, co-producer on the show: "We try to find outstanding new talent—not because we know in advance that they'll be stars someday, but because we know they'll do the job for us."

Stan Quinn, Kraft's other co-producer, has had his full quota of ulcer-inducing moments. He recalls the production of Vinegar Tree, which ran 20 seconds past the sign-off time. Viewers never heard the play's climax line, which was to have explained all that happened during the preceding hour. NBC's switchboards were flooded with calls from disgruntled viewers wondering "Wha' hoppen?"

Once a thief walked off with the cheese supposed to be used for a commercial. "Luckily," Holland said, "we had an understudy piece of cheese".

TV in the news

WHILE covering the televised House Un-American Activities Committee hearings in Los Angeles a news photographer ran out of flash bulbs. Undaunted, he penciled a note reading "I need ⅝ bulbs" and held it before the TV camera. Equipped with TV, his newspaper's city room caught the message and bulbs went out to the ingenious lensman in a hurry.

He's seen just about all the wrestling holds, but this was a surprise twist.

If anybody is going to inherit money, it should be a guy who knows how to put the Indian deathlock on it. The Nelsons are a popular TV show, but the big money seems to be in the half-Nelsons. This boy described the grips so well, he ended up with a trunkful. He now has enough dough to buy haircuts for all wrestlers.

The only scissors this boy will have to worry about from now on is a pair to clip the coupons.

The wrestling will was unusual. In most wills, all the biting, kicking and gouging is done by relatives.

IN THE CAST

Bob and Julie in a scene from the My Hero series.

Julie Bishop: superstitious but successful.

JULIE BISHOP, leading lady in the My Hero television series, is a superstitious young actress whose success in marriage, painting, swimming, acting and flying has overcome any jinx.

Julie is an only child, whose father was a banker and an oil man. She was born in Denver, where her folks had migrated from Dallas. When she was five, they moved to California. Julie started her career as a child actress in motion pictures with Theodore Kosloff, with whom she studied dancing.

After being graduated from Westlake School for Girls, she appeared in a play at the Pasadena Community Playhouse, and in The Marquess with Billie Burke. Producer-Agent Charles Feldman became interested in the talented youngster, and she was placed under contract at Columbia at the same time as another newcomer, Rita Hayworth, with whom she appeared later in several films.

When her contract at Columbia was up, she went to Warners to appear in many top movies, including Action in The North Atlantic, Rhapsody in Blue and Cinderella Jones. During the war, she met Col. Clarence A. Shoop in Palm Springs and nine days after their first date they were wed. They have been married eight years and have two children, Pamela, 4, and Stephen, 2.

Meets Cummings

When Bob Cummings starred in the film, Princess O'Rourke, Julie met him. Her husband was technical adviser on You Came Along, another Cummings' film, and they became fast friends.

As for superstitions, she does everything in threes, including kissing her husband and children. Julie always puts shoes and slippers down with the left one slightly ahead of the right. This stems from a childhood belief that the right foot always had it better than the left so she favors underdog.

She hates olives. In a recent My Hero film she was supposed to eat olives in take after take. Cummings had a chocolate one made especially for her but he gave it to the wrong person and Julie found herself smiling through a very bitter olive.

EVE ARDEN'S GLAMOR, GAGS TICKLE REAL SCHOOLMARMS

EVE Arden, blonde star of the high-rating CBS show, Our Miss Brooks, is currently the darling of the Nation's schoolteachers for one good reason. She portrays a schoolmarm with plenty of glamor, instead of the usual spinsterish caricature.

This wasn't enough to send Eve soaring to television success, but it helped. Also helpful is the fact that she is a gifted comedienne, surrounded by a cast of experienced laugh-getters.

As for Eve herself, the laughs are coming easier these days. She has a busy life—television, radio, a husband and family. She's enjoying every minute of it, but things weren't always so happy.

"But life has battered me only slightly, less than most others," she said during an interview, "and I'm grateful."

Born Eunice Quedens in Mill Valley,

Calif., something over 40 years ago, as Hollywood counts it, she inherited her hopes for the stage from her mother. She appeared in school plays. At 16, she applied for a job with Henry Duffy's stock company, then appearing in San Francisco.

She started with a two-line, walk-on role, then graduated to longer parts and then to a season with the Band Box Repertory Company in Los Angeles.

Eve moved into a Hollywood revue, then got her first real break when Lee Shubert cast her for a spot in the Ziegfeld Follies, which starred Fannie Brice. She was in the following edition of the Follies, when Bob Hope headed the cast, then returned to the West Coast in 1935 because of the death of her mother.

Entered Radio in 1947

She made the first of her more than 40 pictures at that time. Eve branched out into radio in 1947 and was offered the principal role in the radio show Our Miss Brooks the following year. The program caught on, so much so that a pilot television film was made late in 1951. In February, 1952, the program made its television debut.

With success on the stage, in film, on radio and television, Eve's life would seem to have been unbrokenly happy. But she is the first to admit that this isn't true.

"I had all the things I wanted, but I couldn't enjoy them because of inner conflict," she says. "I felt a sense of responsibility for everybody whose life touched mine. It was a little like trying to play God.

"Because I couldn't help everybody, I constantly found fault with myself."

Marriage Proved Happy

Eve tried psychoanalysis for five years, but finally found happiness in her marriage to Brooks West, who now plays the role of Richard Rhinelander, III, in the TV show My Friend Irma.

Show business brought them together. While preparing for a season of summer stock, Eve asked Barry Sullivan to recommend a capable actor. He suggested West, who came out from New York to take the part. They were married about a year ago.

"I wish I had known Brooks earlier," Eve says, "because he is the straightest-thinking man I've ever known. Whenever I begin to worry, he stops me on the spot."

Principal Conklin (left); Biology Professor Philip Boynton (center); and Student Walter Denton combine with Miss Brooks to keep Madison High School in utter confusion.

Their home life centers around Eve's two adopted children, Liza, 8, and Connie, 5. In spite of all the demands on her time, Eve never has been away from them for more than two weeks.

Not Hollywood Pattern

The real Eve Arden doesn't conform to the Hollywood pattern. She dresses simply. Her eyes glint with ready humor. She doesn't pose when off-camera. Her manner is completely natural.

"I'm a sort of sophisticated barefoot girl, if you can imagine such a thing," Eve explains. "I want to own a farm, and yet I hate to live miles from town. As a compromise, we live on a hill overlooking the city, but only two miles from it.

"We call our garden the 'Forest of Arden,' and we're planting all sorts of trees. Yet we have the convenience of living in town."

Five days each week are devoted to her work. Evenings, and the other two days, are spent at home, entertaining friends, working in the garden, designing hooked rugs, and painting. She seldom goes to night clubs because she "hates to stare at people."

Letters from Teachers

She's proud of the volume of mail received by her program, particularly the letters from school teachers who say they admire her portrayal, even if they don't recognize the slightly-mad world of her television school.

Eve didn't get to college and she wants her children to have "a year in the world" between the time they graduate from high school and the time they go to college, probably the University of California. She believes this will make them better-balanced and better able to undertake college work.

Statistically, Eve is five feet eight inches tall and weighs between 135 pounds and 140 pounds. She is popular with the people with whom she works and seldom shows temperament on the set.

"She doesn't like it when the camera reveals unexpected wrinkles or unflattering lines," one studio worker said, "but what woman does? Fortunately, Eve isn't hard to photograph, as the people who have seen the show can tell you."

Philip Boynton (Robert Rockwell) is Miss Brooks' often inattentive TV boy friend.

The only other time her temperature rises is when she fluffs a line. Then, studio workers say, she's apt to "cuss a little under her breath," but only at herself, never at others.

Working in Our Miss Brooks has brought Eve to the point where she understands some of the problems of the schoolteacher. Not just the comedy problems, but the everyday problems, like maintaining dignity and poise in the face of an unruly schoolroom.

"I don't know how they do it," Eve says. "Our set sometimes is as noisy as any schoolroom. It gets on your nerves and I've often been ready to fly off the handle.

"Then I decide that if real teachers can stand it, so can I. They've really taught me how to grin and bear it."

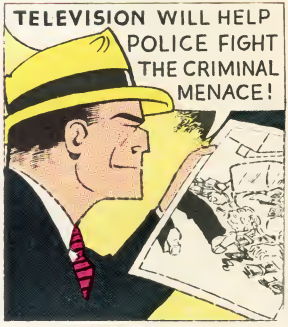
DICK TRACY

TV joins wrist-watch radio and other scientific aids in war against underworld . . .

by CHESTER GOULD
Creator of Dick Tracy



TELEVISION is just an entertainment medium to most Americans. It's the device that brings you Arthur Godfrey from New York, Lucille Ball from Hollywood, and Kukla, Fran and Ollie from Chicago.

It's a scientific miracle that we're all beginning to take in our stride—an instrument for pouring entertainment in the form of pictures and sound into our homes.

But for police chiefs, prosecutors and mayors all over America, the people most directly involved in law enforcement, television is more than that. It's another weapon in the never-ending war against crime.

Reaches 90,000,000 Readers

When I introduced Dick Tracy to the public in 1931, through the Chicago Tribune-Daily News syndicate, which now distributes it to some 90,000,000 readers in more than 400 newspapers, I said the strip would delve deep into accurate crime practice and scientific detection.

Dick Tracy has used all of these scientific methods in disposing of such arch-criminals as Itchy, Flattop, B-B Eyes, Shaky, Mr. Crime and all of the rest of them.

He used the two-way wrist radio in 1946. In June, 1952, I had the pleasure of being presented with such a device, after it was developed in the Western Electric plant at Allentown, Pa.

Now television is helping Tracy in his fight with the underworld, just as it will help police and detectives around the country.

Science Now at Work

I've sketched some of the possibilities in recent adventures of Dick Tracy and more are on the drawing board. There's the battery-powered TV camera, for instance, which can be installed in a suspect's room and flash his every movement and word to police investigators seated at a nearby monitor.

There's the system of permanently mounting television cameras in bank vaults, jewelry stores, fur shops, etc., which will project a constant picture to monitors set up in the nearest police station.

There's the use of television as a link between various cities to aid in the speedy identification of suspects.

I've devoted considerable space to this use of television in police work because it has great possibilities. The present methods of distributing photographs for identification are fast, but they still provide only a handful of pictures of any suspect, taken from various angles. The television system, on the other hand, will provide an actual, moving, lifelike picture. This will make identification more certain, thus speeding police investigations.

LOOKS AT TELEVISION

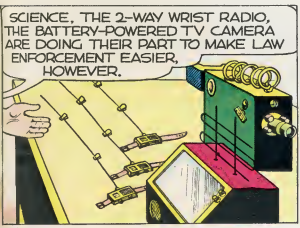
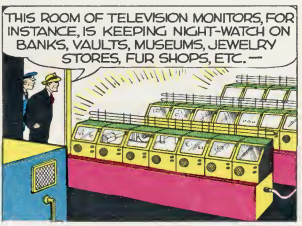
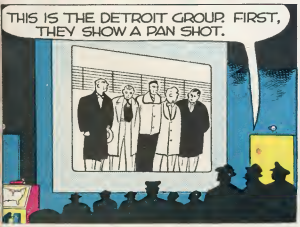
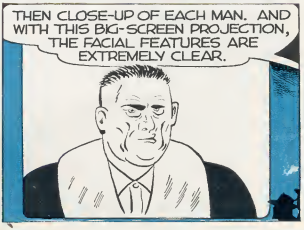
I don't want to tip the criminals off in advance, but Dick Tracy and his police associates have a lot of other television tricks up their sleeve. They'll use them when needed to keep the criminal underworld in its place.

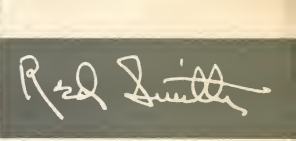








SPORTS



Ladies' Day at the Races

HORSE racing for housewives is being injected into the American home these days by Mr. Fred Capossela and Mr. Sammy Renick, both of whom are smallish gentlemen with biggish voices. The Messrs. C. and R. are collaborating on telecasts of ten weekly races (not including the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes) for the edification of homemakers and the glory of Gillette.

Inasmuch as cavalry posts operate only in the afternoons, the bangtails now go clattering across the screen at hours ordinarily devoted to the womanly arts—programs like The Sewing Circle, Sally Smart's Kitchen, and Homemaker's Jamboree.

By midsummer Milady ought to be pretty well informed, not only on the comparative merits of Native Dancer, Tahitian King and Laffango, but also on which brand of blades to buy for the slickest, quickest shave of all.

Fine for Bearded Lady

Of course, the televised events come off on Saturdays, when some of the stubble-bearing members of the family may be home from work and loafing in front of the receiving set. Possibly the Bearded Lady of the circus watches afternoon television, too.

Mr. Capossela describes the actual running of the races, a difficult art at which he is exceptionally gifted and richly experienced.

Mr. Renick does the "color" on the shows, gabbing with people in the paddock before the race and interviewing the winning jockey, trainer, owner and —if possible—the horse afterwards. Sammy has been doing this over television for six years and in that time has become the most famous jockey in America, with the possible exceptions of Eddie Arcaro and Ted Atkinson.

Inasmuch as there has been no opportunity here to watch the racing series on the screen, no judgment can be offered on the entertainment. It is devoutly hoped, however, that the cameramen have been instructed to keep their lenses trained on the horses during the minute or two of actual competition.

Steeds Mere Bit Players

In the past, directors of television and directors of movies have espoused a theory that two-legged fauna must be the stars of the piece and the steeds mere bit players. It is difficult enough to follow a race through good binoculars with a bright sun to set off the colors of the silks.

It is impossible when the camera abandons the field as it bends into the last turn and swings down to the rail to pick up three fat ladies with their mouths wide open and their hairdo's coming unstuck as they screech, "Come on with him, kid!"

Conceding that a wide-angle view of a fat lady's tonsils may be pictorial art, it is not an aid to dispassionate reporting. If we're going to have pictures of horse races, let's keep the focus on the horses—while they're running, anyhow.

before DARK

TO YOUNG girls dreaming of the "glamorous" life of models, RUTH WOODS, hostess of NBC's Short, Short Drama addresses these words of warning: "Modeling is darned hard work. Beside the long, arduous hours before the camera, you have to keep studying all the time—fashions, make-up, posture, grooming, hair styles and a host of other things!". . . ELLEN DEMMING, star of Guiding Light, studied dramatics under that great lady of the American theater, MAUDE ADAMS.

What television can do to get stock off tradesmen's shelves was dramatically demonstrated recently when druggists reported a run on alum following a Ding Dong School broadcast in which MISS FRANCES had told her listeners how to make clay, with alum as one of the ingredients. . . . Barbara, 5-year-old daughter of BESS MYERSON, of The Big Payoff and former holder of Miss America title, is the spit and image of her Ma and a sure bet for the Miss America crown, say around 1964. . . . JANICE GILBERT, paying teller of Break the Bank has moved into her new "Break the Bank House" at Montvale, N. J.

DALE EVANS, wife and co-star of ROY ROGERS, is, despite her Western dress and athletic prowess, completely feminine and insists that girls should always play up their femininity if only by use of touches of jewelry with masculine-looking sports things—she's had jewelry designed in the form of silver butterflies to wear with costumes.

BETSY HOLLAND, of the "Katydids" on The Kate Smith Hour, seems to have a penchant for acquiring queer names in her theatrical roles—Henrietta Winterbottom in Hazel Flagg, Hazel Pillsbury in Top Banana and Polly Peachem in The Beggars' Opera.

Beauty

By CAROLINE LEONETTI

The purpose of rouge is to suffuse the cheeks with a healthy natural glow and bring more sparkle to the eye. Rouge, unfortunately, is the most abused of cosmetics. Women either seem to apply it too intensely or not at all, or else unflatteringly for their shape faces. It should be delicately applied and not in cake form if using an oily powder base.

Cream rouge tends to work into older skins, or dry skins with greater smoothness. It is not wise, however, to use your lipstick as a rouge, for the stronger color in lipstick dyes the skin, whereas the diffused shades of cream rouge blend easily and harmlessly.

Rouge must always match the lipstick and be applied to the cheeks at a focal point, from where it can be blended into a pattern to best flatter the facial contour. Be sure, however, the line of your pattern is blended into diffusion. Rouge applied with greater intensity under the eyes will lift the face, making it more youthful. Rouge on the outer cheeks tends to widen the face; nearer the nose lessens the width.

Rouge will assure a healthy, natural glow
